Designer schoolboy Stephen

● THIS magnificent dragon shield was designed by young Stephen Robinson as the blazer badge for his school, Sleaford Secondary.

Stephen, a second year at the school, was awarded £10 when pupils chose his design from some 30 others put forward.

The shield shows a red dragon with a gold sword. It has a gold border and is on a blue background.

It will be worn by pupils from the start of the September term.

The metalwork department are currently working on a metal replica of the shield which will be hung and spotlighted in the main school entrance.

The dragon represents the new name of the school — St George's, which was chosen by the School Governors to mark the establishment of the new premises at Westholme. Photo: LSG(SI).
